

Attic

Theatre Company

Welcome!

What We Do

Providing audiences and participants with exceptional original creative experiences that surprise, entertain and inspire

Attic
Theatre Company

Attic believe in the power of stories and creativity. That telling your own story or bearing witness to another's enhances people's lives in big and small ways.

We place equal weight to our participatory work and our produced work. They often flow into and are inspired by each other. We are a new work company who tell diverse stories that both challenge and celebrate the modern world and explore what it is to navigate it.

We celebrate the form of theatre, its liveness and what makes it unique as an art form and use the stories, experiences, and heritage of our communities to connect through the arts.

Contributing to Merton as a thriving cultural place

Attic
Theatre Company

Our home is the London Borough of Merton. We are excited by our home. Contributing to a thriving cultural offer in the borough is key to who we are. We work in partnership with the community and all our work is shaped by this relationship. We fly the flag for Merton wherever we go.

Removing barriers wherever we can

Attic believes that someone's postcode, socio-economic status or protected characteristics should not be a barrier to their ability to engage in top quality theatre experiences. Our work is fleet of foot and can happen in a wide range of spaces, we push the boundaries of small scale touring and seek to be a leader in this. We want to meet our audiences and participants in a way that removes as many barriers as possible.

Celebrating the diversity of our country

Attic
Theatre Company

As a company based in a diverse borough and touring the whole of the UK it's essential that we tell diverse stories that represent the modern world. We want our audiences to see themselves reflected in our work. We actively promote a diverse range of voices within Attic.

Looking forward to another 30 years

In 2024 Attic turns 30.

This period has seen Attic develop strong organisational foundations, relationships and reputation. We will continue to develop the organisation so it is able to continue to grow and build on the success of the first 30 years.